Would'st thou a wanderer reclaim A wild and restless spirit tame Check the warm flow of youthful blood, And lead a lost one back to God? Pause, if thy spirit's wrath be stirr'd, Speak not to him a hitter word-Speak not-that bitter word may be The stamp that seals his destiny.

And dark excess has mark'd his way, 'Tis pitiful-but yet beware, Reform must come from kindly care, Forbid thy parting lips to move But in the gentle tones of love, Though sadly his young heart hath err'd,

Speak not to him a bitter word. The lowering frown he will not bear, The venom'd chidings will not hear; The ardent spirit will not brook The stinging tooth of sharp rebuke : Thou wouldst not good the restless steed To calm his fire, to check his speed; Then let no angry tones he heard-Speak not to him a bitter word.

Go kindly to him-make him feel Your heart yearns deeply for his weal; Tell him the dangers thick that lay Around his "widely devious way;" So shalt thou win him, call him back From pleasure's smooth seductive track. And warnings thou hast kindly given May guide the wand rer up to heaven.
